Macquarie Credit Union Limited - Australian Finance Directory Macquarie Credit Union was formed by electricity workers of Macquarie County Council in 1964. It merged with Dubbo Municipal Council Employees Credit Union in 1974 and with Warren Shire Council Employees Credit Union in 1980. In 2003 a merger with Dubbo Post-Tel Credit Union was completed which then broadened its membership base to Electricity, Council, Health, Post Office and Telstra employees in NSW. Macquarie Credit Union offers various financial products and services to its members. These include loans such as home loans, investment loans, car loans, personal loans and overdraft loans. Moreover, a wide range of insurances such as home building & contents insurance, landlords insurance, car insurance, travel insurance and loan protection insurance are also available. In addition, it offers savings accounts and term deposit accounts. Furthermore, it offers financial planning through Bridges and Visa debit & credit cards. Internet and phone banking services are also provided. In 2013, the Credit Union consolidated its branding and established itself as one entity, Macquarie Credit Union with a new image, bright and colourful logo and re-engineered website. The constitution was changed to offer membership to everyone in the Dubbo local government area providing wider local support and community involvement. While the Credit Union continues to grow beyond its traditional bond partners it will always remain defined by them through its proud heritage.
