Luks Consulting - Australian Bookkeepers Directory
Luks Consulting is a Newcastle based small business endeavouring to help other small businesses. Andrew Luks takes the time to sit down and understand his clients business so he can fully understand their needs, whether they be simple Bookkeeping requirements, assistance with invoicing, Management Accounting or starting a business. He communicates in easy to understand language and save the technical mumbo jumbo for the tax man. Having grown up in Bathurst, NSW, Andrew yearned to get into the action so moved to Newcastle for some tertiary education, namely his Bachelor of Commerce degree. The plan was to head to Sydney or back to the country, however finding the Newcastle beaches, cafes and general lifestyle just too comfortable (as well as finding the woman I would later marry) meant Newcastle and he made a commitment to stay in each other's lives for a lot longer. Following a stint overseas he knew reality had to bite so came home and somehow convinced the Institute of Chartered Accountants. He had what it took to tell people where their money had gone and maybe how they could get a bit more in the door. He quickly realised that he enjoyed working in a business far more than working outside it, so made the decision to concentrate my skills and efforts on being an outsourced employee of businesses. Working with the owner of the business and knowing their motivations and hopes means he can share their vision in order to help them achieve it. Andrew has worked in Newcastle, Sydney and London in a variety of firms and businesses.
